Q: Appending data from two different forms and passing values using PHP I have two forms that use a JavaScript function to post to my PHP form. My issue is that when the user submits the last form, the data is posted to the database but it is only adding the data from that last submitted form. I need the data from both form to be added to the database. What am I doing wrong? Below is my code.

function add_form2() { var length1 = $("#firstname").val(); var length2 = $("#lastname").val(); var name = (length1 + " " + length2); if(document.getElementById("add_form2").style.display=='none') { $("#add_form2").show(); $("#add_form2").css("display","block"); } else { $("#add_form2").hide(); } $.ajax({ url: "ajax.php", type: "POST", data: "firstname=" + name, dataType: "html" }).done(function() { $("#firstname").val(""); $("#lastname").val(""); }); return false; }

A: When you open multiple forms, some
